The choti, or braid, has historically been an integral part of South Asian beauty standards, including in Bangladesh. Traditionally, women from rural and urban communities alike would wear their hair in long, neatly plaited chotis, symbolizing modesty, femininity, and cultural identity. The process of braiding often involved intricate styles and was associated with auspicious occasions like festivals, weddings, and religious ceremonies.

In Bangladesh, the choti also served as a marker of social status and age. For young girls, a simple, clean braid was common, while married women often styled their hair differently, sometimes adorned with flowers or jewelry. The traditional choti was thus more than just a hairstyle—it was a cultural emblem intertwined with societal values.

Historical Evolution of the Choti in Bangladeshi Society

Over centuries, the styling of the choti in Bangladesh was influenced by regional customs, religious practices, and interactions with neighboring cultures such as Indian, Mughal, and Persian traditions.
